

RIGHTS FOR PARTIES TO PRE – TRIAL CONFERENCE(PTC)

Prompt Communication:

Clients are entitled to have their questions and concerns addressed promptly and receive timely responses to their communications.

"Prompt Communication" is a fundamental principle in the attorney-client relationship, emphasizing timely and responsive interactions. Lawyers have a duty to address clients' questions and concerns promptly, providing timely responses and keeping clients informed about case developments.

This client-centered approach builds trust, manages expectations, and empowers clients with the information they need to make informed decisions. Effective communication, including transparency, accessibility, and confidentiality, is essential for a successful attorney-client partnership and ensures clients receive the attention and support they deserve.
